1. Visiting butterfly museum

Korean children start school in March. To celebrate the new semester in March, the children in Holt Ilsan Town went on a special and educational picnic. They visited the butterfly museum in Paju city. They had time to learn about the butterfly while listening to the explanation of the instructor. It was a very valuable time for them to be educated because they would be very interested in plants and animals. Paju city, where the museum is located, was a good place for children’s education because it is home to many endangered wild life. So during the education, our children could think of butterflies as our precious treasure in the nature. The children were able to experience more variety through games and fun activities as well as the instructor’s explanations.
